THE STATE ELECTIONS.

Summary of the Returns from the Various States.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 9.—Final returns
make the total vote for governor 398,849,
of which Robinson has 180,174; Butler, 150,714; Olney, 1,530; Robinson's plurality 10,001. A few mistakes may yet be found. There were many more than a 10,000 majority and official returns will have to be awaited before those can be settled.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10.—Official returns
from fifty-seven of the sixty-seven counties state and estimates from the others give Niles 103,001 and Lacey 117,301 majority.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 9.—The secretary of the Democratic committee claims that the regular majority in Virginia will be 10,000, and that the majority in the legislature on joint ballot may be 40.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 10.—The Evening
Journal says: "The present election returns increase Gen. Clark's majority to over 10,000, and leave little doubt of the election of the Democratic candidate for the remaining office by majorities between 10,000 and 14,000. The senators stand 73 Republicans and 25 Democrats."

ST. PAUL, Nov. 8.—Official returns from six counties, partial returns from about thirty counties, and estimates based upon the election returns from the remainder of the state, show Clark's majority to be 14,000. The senators stand 73 Republicans and 25 Democrats.

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 8.—The latest returns show a change in the result of the election as announced in the Brainerd county, where the Fusion ticket was defeated by a small majority. Adams, Hinds, Madison, and Monroe counties gave good Fusion majorities. The regular Democratic ticket in this opposition between the Fusion and legislature, as usual, is largely Democratic.

MARTIN LUTHER.

The Great Protestant Memorial Receiving Bazaar Everywhere—The Outpouring at Berlin.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Lutheran anniversary was observed here with much solemnity. At 9 o'clock a. m. the children of the Evangelical schools assembled in their respective buildings, and after singing hymns, were addressed by the teachers.
Each was then presented with a copy of Luther's life. At 10 o'clock services were held in the Evangelical church, in which the school children walking in procession with their teachers to the church,
where they joined the general congregation.
The service began and ended with singing of several of Luther's best known hymns, including "Ein feste Burg." The Emperor William, Crown Prince Frederick, William and Princess, and Princess Wilhelmina were present. The service being very impressive. There were 80,000 children in procession, in fifty-three divisions.

and likewise for the erection of

A Score of Men Killed by the Fall of the Wisconsin Capitol—Another Crash—Barnard's Band.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 10.—The roof and a portion of the wall of the state capitol building has fallen. Forty men were in the building, and it is estimated that twenty were killed. Two or three were brought out alive.
The massive iron columns were crushed like
glass.

A great cloud of dust arising from the ruins of the south wing of the capitol building, which had been struck by the falling
building, and it is estimated that twenty were killed. Two or three were brought out alive.
The massive iron columns were crushed like
glass.

The scene immediately after the accident was horrifying in the extreme. Within the building could be seen victims caught in the ruins. Some of them suspended by their legs in torturing positions. Had the crash occurred a few minutes later the entire force of carpenters, engineers and workmen would have leveled the list of casualties.

The contractors of the fatal structure are Beatty & Nowlan, the firm of Milwaukee and the latter of Janesville. The loss financially will be very many thousands.
A prominent architect says, from his examination, the walls supporting the heavy iron pillars were too light in construction and of poor material, which was the key to the collapse.

BUFAO, N. Y., Nov. 11.—During a high wind here, the roof of Jacob Doherty's barrel factory and storehouse, on Williams street, fell in with a crash, carrying with it the upper floor and cornice. There were twenty men in the building at the time, and for a few moments there was a panic and confusion among the men, who were scattered in all directions. The injured were taken to the hospitals. The whole upper portion of the structure, which was four stories high and built of wood, yielded to the heavy gale, and was reduced to a wreck. Two men are dead, with at least one more fatally hurt. Four others were rescued alive, but badly hurt. The ruins have not yet been thoroughly searched.

Washington Letter.

From our regular correspondent.

November 5th, 1883.

It was with a feeling of sadness that I stood looking at the workmen putting the desks into place in the Senate Chamber the other day. It is customary at the close of a session of congress to store these elegant and in many cases, historic articles of furniture in an upper room. They are now being put back in place again preparatory to the coming session of congress. The desks of the Senators are made of mahogany and unlike those of the representatives who use their oak desks very roughly, they are preserved with great care. The desks used by Charles Sumner, Oliver P. Morton, General Burnside, Roscoe Conkling, Henry Wilson, the colored Senator Bruce and many others have descended to their successors and will be used again this winter. It is customary to draw lots for choice of seats, the winner of the first choice selecting his favorite place, and the second the next most desirable and so on to the end of the list. The desks occupy the same places usually. The chairs or seats are changed to suit. I do not suppose there will be many applicants for David Davis' solid and spacious mahogany. It will be remembered that he was the Jumbo of the last session. But these desks though dumb speak in a language of their own. They are like monuments perhaps, or at least they are a link between the living and the dead. The habit of the galleries will people them with familiar forms, some of which now live in history. The crippled giant Morton, the elegant and courtly Conkling, Logan with his swarthy face and black locks, Edmunds as St. Jerome, Burnside with his black silk skull cap, and modest military bearing, Sumner with leonine face and head, Thad. Stevens, Chandler, and many more spring into existence in memory as I look down upon this silent chamber. But we turn naturally towards the future for these vacant halls will soon again resound with legislative debate. Much speculation has been indulged in as to who will be the leader of the House this coming winter. But I begin to wonder who will lead the Senate. There is hardly a commanding figure high above all others. Logan has a strong personality and great force of character but he is not a lawyer. In this assembly of judges and expounders of the constitution he is not the first leader. Edmunds shrinks from leadership, for some cause. He will be heard on great questions but the active partisanship of politics is distasteful to him. Frye and Harrison are strong men, but in this old assembly are counted as young Senators and stand back. Allison, one of the oldest Senators is a follower always. It is evident that a leader is to arise. The place is vacant for some strong man to assume. Who will it be?

It is said to-day that Ben. Butler, the wily, is trying to capture the colored vote and to organize it for himself for the Presidency. This is what comes of having a record wide enough to cover all cases. Butler aspiring as a democrat to capture the extreme southern white vote, and asking the franchise of the colored race on his republican record is a case which seems to stretch our elastic politics to the furthest extent. But if anyone can do it, he can. There is a very bitter feeling on the part of the colored people over the civil rights decision and it is possible the leaders may go over to the other side out of revenge. Butler offers the chance. They can compromise with the democrats over his name. But I think they will conclude that the old party is the best to stand by. I was talking recently to a prominent Southern man of extensive reputation. The black vote will not count for anything in the South in the next election he said. The whites are organized as they never were before. They have the colored vote completely under control. Have you not?

"Don't you suppose the North will be indignant over this suppression of right of the colored republicans," I asked. "No, I do not," he replied, "the North is sick of the whole subject—you cannot get up any feeling about it. Besides there are no special outrages to complain of. It is all arranged by peaceable methods now. The Southern whites possess the polls and run the elections to suit themselves. The blacks might just as well not vote but they let them go through the forms just to satisfy them and to avoid suspicion. It is practically a decided question. The colored people in the lower tier of Southern States are no longer a power in politics."

Here Will We Draw the Line.
"A Nebraska widow with twenty-one children is advertising for a husband."

There is great virtue in printer ink: it has brought fortunes to men and women but we don't have a double column advertisement inserted next to reading matter every day for six months, would bring a husband to a widow with twenty-one children—unless the latter are kept in the background, or underground or somewhere. We dislike to go back on advertising, but the line must be drawn somewhere.—Northwestern Herald.

The Republicans of the Youngstown, (Ohio), district elected one A. D. Fassett to the state senate. It seems, however, the senator-elect is a fugitive from justice, an indictment being pending against him for stealing clothing, which indictment was found at Erie, Pa., and has never been tried. The situation is rather awkward, and Mr. Fassett will have all he can do to escape dwelling at Columbus for a period in a different capacity from that of a state senator.

Down an Embankment.
ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 13.—At 7:30 this morning the West Shore railroad construction train was thrown from the track and three box cars loaded with workmen were sent down an embankment. All the workmen are reported more or less hurt, and several had legs and arms broken and skulls fractured. One man is horribly mutilated and is still reported under the wreck. The wounded were taken to Savannah. The cause of the accident was a broken journal. Thirty men in all were injured. The car went down an embankment 30 feet high.

Set Your Clock Ahead.
Next Sunday, the 15th, the new standard time system goes into effect throughout the United States, which, it must be remembered, has nothing to do with the twenty-four hour system recently proposed. A few weeks ago representatives of nearly every railroad in the United States and Canada met in Chicago to arrange a universal system of time on which all trains should be run. As it has been, many standards, taken from the local time of several of the larger cities, have existed. The plan hit upon and the one which the majority of the roads immediately adopted, is in detail as follows: There have been five standards established, taking the 60th, 75th, 90th, 105th and 120th meridians, respectively as the dividing lines. As there is a distance of 15 degrees between these meridians, the difference in time between each will be one hour. Each standard of time is named, as follows: that portion west of the sixtieth meridian, and east of the seventy-fifth meridian, is known as the Intercolonial standard; that portion between the 75th and 90th meridians is called the Eastern standard; between the 90th and 105th meridians is known as the Central standard; between the 105th and 120th, the Mountain standard, and that portion along the coast west of the 120th meridian is called the Pacific standard. To localize these districts to the readers who are not fully acquainted with longitude, it may be stated that the sixtieth meridian passes through the Gulf of St. Lawrence and away east of the United States; the seventy-fifth through Philadelphia and Ottawa, Canada; the ninety through New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis and a little west of Madison, Wisconsin; the 105th through Denver, and the 120th through Carson City, Nevada. A little inquiry among the local railroad officials and time keepers showing the former busy at work revising time tables, which necessitates a change of thirteen minutes. To keep your watch or clock with railroad time, therefore, it will be necessary to turn it ahead thirteen minutes, and we, here, will always be that much out of the way. However, as the jewelers will turn their regulators ahead, we shall not notice the difference after a few weeks, and it will be much better than to have two standards of time which differ thirteen minutes.

A Terrible Molocaut.

Charleston, S. C., dispatch: Fire broke out Monday afternoon on Hague street in Wilbur's clothing manufactory, and spreading to Robertson, Taylor & Co., both buildings were gutted. Long bag factory adjoining was damaged. The loss is estimated at $80,000. Eight women and one boy were employed in Wilbur's factory, most of whom jumped from the third story. Ellen Heron was killed, and Susie Bond badly injured. Mary Wolfe was badly burned, but may recover. Maggie Quinlisk and Annie Tyler were badly hurt, but will recover. Abigail Guy and Laura Green are supposed to have been burned in the building. A little boy named Lighthouse jumped, and was caught unhurt. Only eight persons named were on the third story. The fire broke out under the stairway of the second floor, cutting off escape, as the fire spread rapidly. The persons on the second floor escaped with difficulty.

A Young Fiend.
West Lebanon, Indiana county, Pa., was the scene on Saturday night of a brutal double murder. Wm. Somer, an old and respected citizen, had an altercation with his son Joseph about putting a kitter out of the house, when the son drew a revolver and shot his father in the hip. The old man fled, but was followed by his son, who fired a second shot, the bullet crashing through his father's brain, killing him instantly. The patriote returned home and killed Bela Kelly, a servant girl. He then fled, but was captured last night. Great excitement prevails and threats of lynching are freely expressed.

Begging of the President.
In a compartment of a large walnut boxcar at the White House, a number of large brown envelopes were piled, marked "eccentricity." Their contents are, in the main, begging letters from all parts of the United States, addressed to the president for aid in carrying out private enterprises. One is from a lady who signs herself a music teacher, who asks the president to purchase her a piano, in order that she may give music lessons to support herself. Another from a veteran of the late war, calls attention to the fact that his pension has been delayed too long to suit him, and prompt action is urged in the matter. All sorts of schemes are proposed for the distribution of the president's salary, but thus far he has declined to pay any attention to the letters. A persistent crank sends a weekly communication in relation to a patent for perpetual motion, with the suggestion that a few thousand dollars are alone needed to insure its success, but the brief "eccentricity" on the package is the only consideration that it obtains. Nearly all of these letters are received and opened by the president, who refers them to his secretary.

BURNED UP A MILLION.

A Great Conflagration at Shenandoah, Pa., Rendering 250 Families Homeless—An Appeal for Aid.
SHENANDOAH, Pa., Nov. 12.—Fire in the United States hotel, a large three-story frame structure, corner Main and Center streets, broke out Monday night, and in a few minutes blowing a hurricane at the time and continued during the afternoon. The building was soon enveloped in flames, which communicated to the adjoining buildings north of Center street. The flames then communicated to the block on the opposite side of the street. At 3 o'clock sixteen street fronts had been destroyed, including the United States hotel, O'Leary's hall, Academy of Music, Herald office, opera house, Mining Herald and Saturday Evening News offices. Assistance was telegraphed for, which was responded to from Pottsville, Ashland, Girardville, Tamaqua, Mahanoy City and other places. Over 250 families are homeless, having lost everything. The loss is estimated at $750,000 to $1,000,000. It is impossible to give the amount of insurance, but it is supposed to be large. But few serious accidents happened. A young man named George Henton, on his way home, attempted to jump on a passenger engine, and had both legs taken off. He will die. A special meeting of the council and citizens was held this evening. The following appeal to the public was drawn:

A terrible holocaust has swept the town. Two hundred and fifty families are homeless to-night, and most of them lost their all, and are without provisions or change of clothing. The weather is bitter cold, and a strong northwest gale is still blowing. Everything possible for their immediate relief is being done, but we must have help. Who will aid us, and give at once? A relief committee with John Cathers treasurer, has been appointed, and will receive all contributions of supplies, clothing or money the generous public may be charitable enough to send.

Northeastern Nebraska.

The growth and prosperity of Northeastern Nebraska, is best illustrated by the numerous towns that have within the past two or three years sprung up within its borders. A comparatively short time ago Wayne, Wakefield and other villages of considerable importance were unknown. The growth, however, is not exhausted. In Cedar county have lately been established two or three towns, which bid fair to eclipse anything in this part of the state. This is particularly true of the new town of Harrington, which, from its geographical position, can hardly fail to become the chief town of Cedar county, and one of the finest, if not the principal town of Northern Nebraska.

The advantages and natural resources of this section of the state long unknown, are now becoming known and appreciated. The villages that are being established, and the farmers who are occupying the land, are laying the foundation for what will in future years prove as prosperous a community as any in this or any of the rich and populous Mississippi valley states.

From Sioux City west, and from Omaha north to Harrington, the new line of railroad runs through a fertile territory, having a number of stirring villages, most of them being of late date and considering their age, possessed of considerable wealth and population.

Wayne, Dixon and Cedar have perhaps, greater natural resources than any other counties, and when the stream of coming emigration shall occupy the land and their labor shall develop its natural wealth, they will take their place in farming and stock raising among the foremost counties of the state. MARTIN LUTHER.

The Great Protestant Memorial Service.

Receiving Honorary Citizenship—The Outpouring at Berlin.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Luther's anniversary was observed here with much solemnity. At 9 o'clock a. m., the children of the Evangelical schools assembled in their respective buildings, and after prayer and singing hymns, were addressed by the teachers. Each was then presented with a copy of Luther's life. At 10 o'clock services were held in the Evangelical churches, the school children, walking in procession with their teachers to the church, where they joined the general congregation. The services lasted and ended with singing of several of Luther's hymns, including "Ein feste Burg." The Emperor William, Crown Prince Frederick William and Prince and Princess William worshipped at St. Nicholas church, the service being very impressive. There were 30,000 children in procession, in fifty-three divisions.

LUTHER, Nov. 12.—Here, as elsewhere throughout the empire, the memory of Luther was celebrated with much solemnity. Services, processions and general decorations. It is intended to erect in this city a memorial church to the great reformer, the architect of which will be Herr Julius Zeising. Collections in behalf of this building and likewise for the erection of a Lutheran church to commemorate the diet of Speyer in 1529 have been largely made and specially responded to. The Luther church will be erected in the city of Speyer. The celebration will be continued another day and the collection likewise. Indeed at nearly all the meetings here collections have been the leading feature.

At Hamburg the festival was celebrated by travelling a colossal boat of the Reformer, and by a popular festival at Moorwiese.

In Bremen the market square was transformed into a grand festival for the demonstration.

At Leipzig a great monument bearing the names of Luther and Melancthon, was unveiled in front of St. John's church.

At Erfurt, where Luther first preached, the Augustinian monastery, at which Luther was confined for ten months in the castle of Wartburg, and the Nordhausen, the birthplace of Luther, were the scene of great rejoicings.

At Wittenberg, where Luther was buried, the Luther church was opened in his honor. The attendance everywhere was conducted with great splendor, and were attended by immense crowds of people.

I know it, and I do not know that there is any necessity for keeping quiet about it any longer, and I think that before the party will have no doubt that he is a candidate. The result of the election in New York has, perhaps, made it proper that the candidacy should be avowed. I think that Arthur is the man to carry New York, and that from present appearances he will convince the party leaders that he is the man."

A Score of Men Killed by the Fall of the Wisconsin Capitol—Another Crash—Bazaar Band.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 10.—The iron roof and a portion of the wall of the state capitol building has fallen. Forty men were in the building, and it is estimated that twenty were killed. Two or three were brought out alive. The massive iron columns were crossed like class.

A great cloud of dust arising from the ruins of the south wing of the capitol building marked the spot where the disaster had occurred. Thousands assembled, and in a few moments the work of rescue began.

The scene immediately after the accident was horrifying in the extreme. Within the building could be seen victims caught in the ruins. Some of them suspended by their legs in torturing positions. Had the crash occurred a few minutes later the entire force of carpenters and gas fitters would have leveled the list of fatalities. The contractors of the fatal structure are Bentley & Nowlan, the former of Milwaukee and the latter of Janesville. The loss financially will be very many thousands. A prominent architect says, from his examination, the walls supporting the heavy iron pillars were too light in construction and of poor material, which was the key to the collapse.

REYDAN, N. Y., Nov. 11.—During a high wind here the roof of Jacob Doherty's factory and storehouse, on Williams street, fell in with a crash, carrying with it the upper floor and cornice. There were twenty men in the building at the time, and for a few moments there was a panic and confusion, mingled with the screams and groans of the injured. The whole upper portion of the structure, which was four stories high and built of wood, yielded to the heavy gale, and was reduced to a wreck. Two men are dead, with at least one more fatally hurt. Four others were rescued alive, but badly hurt. The runaways have not yet been thoroughly searched.

Washington Letter.
From our regular Correspondent.

November 5th, 1883.

It was with a feeling of sadness that I stood looking at the workmen putting the desks into place in the Senate Chamber the other day. It is customary at the close of a session of congress to store these elegant and in many cases, historic articles of furniture in an upper room. They are now being put back in place again preparatory to the coming session of congress. The desks of the Senators are made of mahogany and unlike those of the representatives who use their oak desks very roughly, they are preserved with great care. The desks used by Charles Sumner, Oliver P. Morton, General Burnside, Roscoe Conkling, Henry Wilson, the colored Senator Bruce and many others have descended to their successors and will be used again this winter. It is customary to draw lots for choice of seats, the winner of the first choice selecting his favorite place, and the second the next most desirable and so on to the end of the list. The desks occupy the same places usually. The chairs or seats are changed to suit. I do not suppose there will be many applicants for David Davis' solid and spacious mahogany. It will be remembered that he was the Jumbo of the last session. But these desks though dumb speak in a language of their own. They are like monuments perhaps, or at least they are a link between the living and the dead. The habit of the galleries will people them with familiar forms, some of which now live in history. The crippled giant Morton, the elegant and courtly Conkling, Logan with his swarthy face and black locks, Edmunds as St. Jerome, Burnside with his black silk skull cap, and modest military bearing, Sumner with leonine face and head, Thad. Stevens, Chandler, and many more spring into existence in memory as I look down upon this silent chamber. But we turn naturally towards the future for these vacant halls will soon again resound with legislative debate. Much speculation has been indulged in as to who will be the leader of the House this coming winter. But I begin to wonder who will lead the Senate. There is hardly a commanding figure high above all others. Logan has a strong personality and great force of character but he is not a lawyer. In this assembly of judges and expounders of the constitution he is not the first leader. Edmunds shrinks from leadership, for some cause. He will be heard on great questions but the active partisanship of politics is distasteful to him. Frye and Harrison are strong men, but in this old assembly are counted as young Senators and stand back. Allison, one of the oldest Senators is a follower, always. It is evident that a leader is to arise. The place is vacant for some strong man to assume. Who will it be?

It is said to-day that Ben. Butler, the wily, is trying to capture the colored vote and to organize it for himself for the Presidency. This is what comes of having a record wide enough to cover all cases. Butler aspiring as a democrat to capture the extreme southern white vote, and asking the franchise of the colored race on his republican record is a case which seems to stretch our elastic politics to the furthest extent. But if anyone can do it, he can. There is a very bitter feeling on the part of the colored people over the civil rights decision and it is possible the leaders may go over to the other side out of revenge. Butler offers the chance. They can compromise with the democrats over his name. But I think by the time election day comes they will conclude that the old party is the best to stand by. I was talking recently to a prominent Southern man of extensive reputation. The black vote will not count for anything in the South in the next election he said. The whites are organized as they never were before. They have the colored vote completely under control. Have you not of it all?

"Don't you suppose the North will be indignant over this suppression of right of the colored republicans?" I asked. "No, I do not," he replied, "the North is sick of the whole subject—you cannot get up any feeling about it. Besides there are no special outrages to complain of. It is all arranged by peaceable methods now. The Southern whites possess the polls and run the elections to suit themselves. The blacks might just as well not vote but they let them go through the forms just to satisfy them and to avoid suspicion. It is practically a decided question. The colored people in the lower tier of Southern States are no longer a power in politics."

Here Will We Draw the Line.

"A Nebraska widow with twenty-one children is advertising for a husband."

There is great virtue in printer's ink; it has brought fortunes to men and women but we don't like a double column advertisement inserted next to reading matter every day for six months, would bring a husband to a widow with twenty-one children—unless the latter are kept in the background, or underground or somewhere. We dislike to go back on advertising but the line must be drawn somewhere.—Norristown Herald.

The Republicans of the Youngstown, (Ohio) district elected one A. D. Fassett to the state senate. It seems, however, the senator-elect is a fugitive from justice, an indictment being pending against him for stealing clothing, which indictment was found at Erie, Pa., and has never been tried. The situation is rather awkward, and Mr. Fassett will have all he can do to escape dwelling at Columbus for a period in a different capacity from that of a state senator.

Down an Embankment.

ROCKFORD, N. Y., Nov. 13.—At 7:30 this morning the West Shore railroad construction train was thrown from the track and three box cars loaded with workmen were sent down an embankment. All the workmen are reported more or less hurt, and several had legs and arms broken and skulls fractured. One man is horribly mutilated and is still reported under the wreck. The wounded were taken to Savannah. The cause of the accident was a broken journal. Thirty men in all were injured. The car went down an embankment 30 feet high.

Set Your Clock Ahead.

Next Sunday, the 18th, the new standard time system goes into effect throughout the United States, which, it must be remembered, has nothing to do with the twenty-four hour system recently proposed. A few weeks ago representatives of nearly every railroad in the United States and Canada met in Chicago to arrange a universal system of time on which all trains should be run. As it has been, many standards, taken from the local time of several of the larger cities, have existed. The plan hit upon and the one which the majority of the roads immediately adopted, is in detail as follows: There have been five standards established, taking the 60th, 75th, 90th, 105th and 120th meridians, respectively as the dividing lines. As there is a distance of 15 degrees between these meridians, the difference in time between each will be one hour. Each standard of time is named, as follows: that portion west of the sixtieth meridian, and east of the seventy-fifth meridian, is known as the Intercolonial standard; that portion between the 75th and 90th meridians is called the Eastern standard; between the 90th and 105th meridians is known as the Central standard; between the 105th and 120th, the Mountain standard, and that portion along the coast west of the 120th meridian is called the Pacific standard. To localize these districts to the readers who are not fully acquainted with longitude, it may be stated that the sixtieth meridian passes through the Gulf of St. Lawrence and away east of the United States; the seventy-fifth through Philadelphia and Ottawa, Canada; the ninety through New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis and a little west of Madison, Wisconsin; the 105th through Denver, and the 120th through Carson City, Nevada. A little inquiry among the local railroad officials and time keepers showed the former busy at work revising time tables, which necessitates a change of thirteen minutes. To keep your watch or clock with railroad time, therefore, it will be necessary to turn it ahead thirteen minutes, and we, here, will always be that much out of the way. However, as the jewelers will turn their regulators ahead, we shall not notice the difference after a few weeks, and it will be much better than to have two standards of time which differ thirteen minutes.

A Terrible Holocaust.

Charleston, S. C., dispatch: Fire broke out Monday afternoon on Hague street in Wilbur's clothing manufactory, and spreading to Robertson, Taylor & Co., both buildings were gutted. Ludwig's bag factory adjoining was damaged. The loss is estimated at $80,000. Eight women and one boy were employed in Wilbur's factory, most of whom jumped from the third story. Ellen Heron was killed, and Susie Bond mortally injured. Mary Wolfe was badly burned, but may recover. Maggie Quinlisk and Annie Tyler were badly hurt, but will recover. Abigail Guy and Laura Green are supposed to have been burned in the building. A little boy named Lighthouse jumped, and was caught unhurt. Only the eight persons named were on the third story. The fire broke out under the stairway of the second floor, cutting off escape, as the fire spread rapidly. The persons on the second floor escaped with difficulty.

A Young Fiend.

West Lebanon, Indiana county, Pa., was the scene on Saturday night of a brutal double murder. Wm. Somer, an old and respected citizen, had an altercation with a son Joseph about putting a kitten out of the house, when the son drew a revolver and shot his father in the hip. The old man fled, but was followed by his son, who fired a second shot, the bullet crashing through his father's brain, killing him instantly. The patriarch returned home and killed Bela Kelly, a servant girl. He then fled, but was captured last night. Great excitement prevails and threats of lynching are freely expressed.

Begging of the President.

In a compartment of a large walnut boxcase at the White House, a number of large brown envelopes are piled, marked "eccentric." Their contents are, in the main, begging letters from all parts of the United States, addressed to the president for aid in carrying out private enterprises. One is from a lady who signs herself a music teacher, who asks the president to purchase her a piano, in order that she may give music lessons to support herself. Another from a veteran of the late war, calls attention to the fact that his pension has been delayed too long to suit him, and prompt action is urged in the matter. All sorts of schemes are proposed for the distribution of the president's salary, but thus far he has declined to pay any attention to the letters. A persistent crank sends a weekly communication in relation to a patent for perpetual motion, with the suggestion that a few thousand dollars are alone needed to insure its success. But the brief "eccentric" on the package is the only consideration that it obtains. Nearly all of these letters are received and opened by the president, who refers them to his secretary.

BURNED UP A MILLION.

A Great Conflagration at Shenandoah, Pa., Rendering 250 Families Homeless—An Appeal for Aid.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Nov. 12.—Fire in the United States hotel, a large three-story frame structure corner Main and Center streets, was blowing a hurricane at the time and continued during the afternoon. The building was soon enveloped in flames, which communicated to the adjoining buildings north of Center street. The flames then communicated to the block on the opposite side of the street. At 3 o'clock sixteen street fronts had been destroyed, including the United States hotel, O'Neil's hall, Academy of Music, Herald office, opera house, Mining News office. Assistance was telegraphed for, which was responded to from Pottsville, Ashland, Girardville, Tamaqua, Mahoning City and other places. Over 250 families are homeless, having lost everything. The loss is estimated at $750,000 to $1,000,000. It is impossible to give the amount of insurance, but it is supposed to be large. But few serious accidents happened. A young man named George Heaton, on his way home, attempted to jump on a passenger engine, and had both legs taken off. He will die. A special meeting of the council and citizens was held this evening. The following appeal to the public was drawn: A terrible holocaust has swept the town. Two hundred and fifty families are homeless to-night, and most of them lost their all, and are without provisions or change of clothing. The weather is bitter cold, and a strong northwest gale is still blowing. Everything possible for their immediate relief is being done, but we must have help. Who will aid us, and give at once? A relief committee, with John Cathers, treasurer, has been appointed, and will receive all contributions of supplies, clothing or money the generous public may be charitable enough to send. [Signed] D. J. WILLIAMS, Chief Burgess.

Northeastern Nebraska.

The growth and prosperity of Northeastern Nebraska, is best illustrated by the numerous towns that have within the past two or three years sprung up within its borders. A comparatively short time ago Wayne, Wakefield and other villages of considerable importance were unknown. The growth, however, is not exhausted. In Cedar county have lately been established two or three towns, which bid fair to eclipse anything in this part of the state. This is particularly true of the new town of Harrington, which, from its geographical position, can hardly fail to become the chief town of Cedar county, and one of the finest, if not the principal town of Northern Nebraska.

The advantages and natural resources of this section of the state long unknown, are now becoming known and appreciated. The villages that are being established, and the farmers who are occupying the land, are laying the foundation for what will in future years prove as prosperous a community as any in this or any of the rich and populous Mississippi valley states.

From Sioux City west, and from Omaha north to Harrington, the new line of railroad runs through a fertile territory, having a number of stirring villages, most of them being of late date and considering their age, possessed of considerable wealth and population.

Wayne, Dixon and Cedar have perhaps, greater natural resources than any other counties, and when the stream of coming emigration shall occupy the land and their labor shall develop its natural wealth, they will take their place in the farming and stock raising among the foremost counties of the state.
